has the greatest confidence in their virtues. The patient does not know their composition. Even prescriptions are usually written in a language unintelligible to any but the druggist. As much secrecy is employed as in the preparation of proprietary medicines. Does the fact that an article is prepared by a process known only to the manufacturer render that article less valuable? How many physicians know the elementary composition of the remedies which they employ, some of which have never been analyzed? Few practitioners know how Morphine, Quinine, Podophyllin, Leptandrin, Pepsin, or Chloroform, are made, or how nauseous drugs are transformed into palatable elixirs; yet they do not hesitate to employ them. Is it not inconsistent to use a prescription, the composition of which is unknown to us, and discard another preparation simply because it is accompanied by a printed statement of its properties, with directions for its use?

Occasionally, bitterness is aroused and invectives are hurled at me by physicians whose patients have been cured by my medicines. Several attempts have been made to injure the reputation acquired by my standard Family Medicines, by publishing falsehoods in regard to their composition. The most absurd formulas have been published, and it has even been asserted that my medicines are poisonous and unsafe for the people to take. Among the large number of pretended analyses published, it is a significant fact that no two have been at all alike—conclusively proving the dishonesty of their authors. In refutation of all such vile reports and for making my medicines, concocted, as they all are, either by jealous physicians, or by rivals in the manufacture and sale of other medicines, let me say that my remedies have been before the public for many years,—a period long enough to fully test their merits,—and the best argument that can be advanced in their favor is the fact that their sale has steadily increased during the whole of this time. I am one to believe that great success is never achieved without merit. An article that holds the field year after year, the sales of which increase regularly and rapidly, must have absolute merit. But envious people are always jealous of the prosperity of others, and love to detract from their reputation. Swift says that "censure is the tax a man pays to the public for being eminent," and experience proves that the more merit a medicine possesses, and the greater its popularity and sale, the more will it be assailed and denounced by jealous physicians and proprietors of other medicines. It is enough for the people to know that while thousands, yes, I may truthfully say millions, have taken my medicines and been cured, no one has ever received injury from their use.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D.

NEARLY 100,000 COPIES SOLD.

"The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser" appears in a revised form, having attained a sale of nearly 100,000 copies within a few months of its first issue. This fact alone is a sufficient indication of its great popularity. The people find in it the information that they need,
